

The NAB has no right to trample on the first amendment rights of satellite radio broadcasters. Furthermore it is certainly NOT in the public interest to limit satellite radio broadcasts just because they may impact the revenues of commercial corporate interests. The spirit of capitalism is best served when it competes in the open market - serving the public interest as well as private enterprise.

The FCC should not bow to the self serving demands of the NAB.